II. MANDATE - SPECIFIC COMPETENCE / QUALIFICATIONS / KNOWLEDGE

NOTE: Please describe why the candidate's competence / qualifications / knowledge is relevant in relation to the specific mandate:

1. QUALIFICATIONS (200 words)

Relevant educational qualifications or equivalent professional experience in the field of human rights; good communication skills (i.e. orally and in writing) in one of the six official languages of the United Nations (i.e. Arabic, Chinese, English, French, Russian, Spanish.)

I completed an MSc in Migration Studies at the University of Oxford, making history as the first Romani orphan who graduated from this prestigious university. In addition, I hold a BA in Law from the European University of Macedonia in Skopje, where I graduated at its Faculty of Law with a GPA of 9,43 out of 10,00.

Professionally, over the last seven years I have been initiating, assisting in, and commissioning advocacy activities aiming to ameliorate the human rights situation of different minority groups at the local, national and international level throughout Europe. Pre-eminently, I have been focusing on the human rights situation of the largest ethnic minority in Europe, the Romani community.

I am fluent in Macedonian, Romanes, and English. I also speak Serbian, Bulgarian, Croatian and a bit of Arabic.

2. RELEVANT EXPERTISE (200 words)

Knowledge of international human rights instruments, norms and principles. (Please state how this was acquired.)

Special Rapporteur on contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance [HRC res. 34/35]

*Appointment to be made by the Human Rights Council at its 36th session
(11-29 September 2017)*

Knowledge of institutional mandates related to the United Nations or other international or regional organizations' work in the area of human rights.

(Please state how this was acquired.)

Proven work experience in the field of human rights. (Please state years of experience.)

Throughout my seven years of work experience, I held a number of advocacy and legal positions that required me to operationalize different duties at local, regional and international level throughout Europe.

While working as an Advocacy Officer at the European Roma Rights Centre (ERRC), inter alia, I monitored and assessed the implementation of core international human rights standards, then synthesized these assessments into reports and submitted them to the UN human rights treaty bodies accordingly. Through this experience I gained an operational knowledge of the UN mandate and its human rights mechanisms.

In a similar vein, as part of my Legal Trainee work-portfolio at this organisation, I helped prepare, draft and submit legal cases and litigation before national and international tribunals, such as the national civil and constitutional courts as well as before the European Court of Human Rights. This is how I acquired theoretical and operational perspectives concerning international human rights instruments, norms, and principles.

Throughout my work career both at national and international level, I helped build and establish coalitions and informal partnerships with international and regional non- and inter-governmental human rights organizations, which led me to acquire a pertinent knowledge related to organizations' work in the area of human rights.

3. ESTABLISHED COMPETENCE (200 words)

Nationally, regionally or internationally recognized competence related to human rights. (Please explain how such competence was acquired.)

I started my career as a human rights activist at the grass-roots level, in the most segregated neighborhood in an undeveloped country, the Shuto Orizari settlement in the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia. Over the last seven years, I rose to a senior position at the ERRC, a leading international organization that fights racial discrimination of the largest ethnic minority in Europe, the Roma minority. This career path is a testament to my established competence in the field of racism and racial discrimination at international level.

In this period, I have commissioned advocacy and legal work at the all levels of governance. As a result of this work, steps towards the eradication of discriminatory practices have been made and legal frameworks and policies have been changed in number of states in Europe. The racial profiling of Roma at the Macedonian borders, a practice that was once entrenched in the Law on Travel Documents, has now been removed. The frequent police attacks against women and children of color in many European countries have been significantly reduced, after documenting the cases of victims, organizing large-scale demonstrations against racial discrimination as well as raising awareness campaigns on racism and intolerance. These are just some of the exemplary indicators demonstrating my established comprehensive competence in the field of racism and racial discrimination.

I am aware of the workload and time commitments that are required, and i am fully ready and able to dedicate the necessary time (estimated to be a total of approximately three months per year). III. MOTIVATION LETTER (600 word limit, must be included below and not in a separate e-mail or as an attachment)

The religious, ethnic and socio-economic dimensions of my personal identity have directed my career path: To help the helpless and defend the defenseless. As a Romani Muslim who grew up in the poorest settlement in a relatively poor country, I empathize with those who are facing similar obstacles - those who are facing multiple and intersecting forms of racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance due to their socially-contracted differences, conditions or personal preferences.

That has been the impetus behind my seven years of human rights activism at national, regional and international level, and my current interest in becoming the Special Rapporteur on contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance.

Starting as a human rights activist at the national level, I organized public debates and large-scale demonstrations against different forms of discrimination and hate speech towards minorities, especially against the police brutality that was disproportionately targeting Romani women and children in Shuto Orizari, the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia.

After joining a UNHCR partner organization, the Macedonian Young Lawyer Association (MYLA), I provided legal assistance to thousands of stateless persons, asylum seekers as well as IDPs in the Balkan region. Here, for the first time I became aware of similar patterns of the problems that co-exist between different minority groups.

After being active for a few years at national level, I gradually moved to the international level to work for an international human rights organization, the European Roma Rights Centre (ERRC).

At ERRC, I conducted a number of empirical research projects and undertakings on various human rights issues, such as the equal access to housing (focusing on forced evictions), education (focusing on mainstream schools versus segregated schools) as well as on issues concerning migration (incorporating both emigration and immigration). Along with this research, assessments were carried out on the implementation of the core international human rights instruments (ICCPR, ICESCR, CRC etc.) in different European countries. These works were then synthesized into reports.

To increase awareness of human rights abuses, I also commissioned awareness-raising campaigns, built coalitions with stakeholders (equality bodies, NHRIs, NGOs) and provided legal and policy recommendations on improving the situation of minorities groups to national governments in Kosovo, Albania, Macedonia, Romania, France, and Italy, among others. Bridging the needs of the minorities with the governments' legal obligations and political abilities has been a vital element of my international work in Europe.

In 2016, I spent some time working for an international peacebuilding organization in Amman, Jordan, where I focused on countering extremism vis-à-vis peace-building operations in the MENA region. This experience taught me that the patterns of inequality in the Middle East and North Africa resemble the ones that exist in the European countries.

I am also advising the Chair of the New York City Immigration Committee (Hon. Council Member Carlos Menchaca) on issues concerning international migration and its impact on contemporary societies. I recently spent two months in the New York and worked alongside the Council Member on public advocacy activities, meeting with leaders of prominent Muslim, Latino and LGBTIQ organizations and discussing the ramifications of recent US immigration policies.

I have been working towards this opportunity to work for and with the UN for a long time, and I am finally inclined to believe that my international work experience in conjunction with the moral authority of our United Nations can offer a unique and competent Special Rapporteur that could elevate the voice of the voiceless, and help the helpless across the world.
