(10 lines maximum)

He actively participated as then focal person of the National Commission on Indigenous Peoples to the Presidential Human Rights Committee. He headed the committee to monitor and report State compliance to the UN ICERD and co-drafted the 1st National Human Rights Action Plan of the Philippines. He managed the constitution of the Indigenous Peoples Consultative Body of the Philippines to unify and strengthen the leadership ranks of the Indigenous Peoples in asserting their equality of rights and fundamental freedoms. The consultative body strengthens the political empowerment of IPs at all levels. He also spearheaded the drafting of the national guidelines on the mandatory representation of Indigenous Peoples in local legislative councils and other policy-making bodies which is now being implemented to ensure that Indigenous Peoples actively engage and participate in governance. This further ensures that IP perspective shall be incorporated in local policy instruments and mechanisms. He currently engages in community organizing and advocacy to strengthen community assertion of both their collective and individual rights, especially in investment driven areas.
