“Tracking progress and ensuring coherence”

Programme

Updated 16.11
Welcome to the 2015 Forum!

This year’s Forum will identify ways to track progress, promote policy coherence and achieve more rapid change on the ground for rights-holders. Discussions in the plenary and parallel sessions will focus on six key areas that address the overall theme, taking into account the three pillars of the Guiding Principles: the State duty to protect against human rights abuses, the corporate responsibility to respect human rights, and the need for access to effective remedy for victims:

1. Efforts to track performance and progress in the implementation of the Guiding Principles, examining the wide range of existing initiatives and methodologies – from measuring, tracking and reporting to ranking and benchmarking – to measure and track progress of implementation by States and businesses;
2. Policy coherence in global governance frameworks, exploring the practical implications of the Guiding Principles for policies relating to trade, investment and sustainable development, and opportunities for improved policy coherence;
3. Policy and practice coherence at the national level, exploring emerging practices, challenges and opportunities, including the increasing trend of developing national action plans on business and human rights, as well as a focus on State-owned enterprises and economic activities controlled by the State;
4. Corporate respect for human rights in practice, exploring how companies can effectively prevent and address any adverse impact on human rights, with a particular focus on human rights due diligence, sector specific challenges and supply chain issues;
5. Groups at risk, learning from human rights defenders and groups who have been and are at particular risk of business-related human rights abuses, assessing the level of protection, and exploring good practice responses;
6. Access to effective remedy, examining trends and innovative ways to strengthen access to remedy for victims through both judicial and non-judicial mechanisms.

Each year the Forum strives to link discussions to concrete realities and existing challenges to securing protection, respect and remedy of private sector impact on human rights. Multi-stakeholder engagement between States, businesses, civil society and affected stakeholders across the three pillars of the Guiding Principles is a key focus. Mega sports events, which have dominated recent global headlines, also encapsulate all six of the Forum’s themes and will be discussed in a special session.

A number of parallel sessions organized by external stakeholders will complement UN-led sessions on the topics listed above and address key trends and issues related to specific rights, groups, sectors and operational contexts. High-level plenary sessions will provide leadership perspectives on the business and human rights agenda and current global trends.

Interpretation services in English, French and Spanish will be provided at all sessions organized by the Working Group and OHCHR. Plenary sessions will be provided with interpretation services in all official languages of the United Nations. Interpretation services for other sessions are subject to arrangements made by external organizers.
