

Call for inputs to the Working Group's report on corporate human rights due diligence (HRDD):

The following questions are meant to help guide inputs:

- What does a roadmap to good HRDD look like?
- What examples exist of HRDD being integrated in corporate processes such as corporate governance, risk management, supply chain management, M&As?
- What good practice examples exist for HRDD elements such as:
 - Engaging affected stakeholders (communities and workers as well as human rights defenders and trade unions) in identifying and assessing human rights risks and impacts
 - Exercising leverage to address potential and actual human rights impacts caused by business relationships (suppliers, joint venture partners, government agencies and others)
 - Transparency and meaningful communication and reporting on risks and impacts and how they are being addressed
 - Integration of gender aspects
 - Measuring impacts of HRDD and performance
- What good practice examples of industry and multi-stakeholder platforms supporting HRDD exist?
- What good practice examples of government action to incentivize and enable HRDD exist (regulation, policies, learning and dialogue platforms, oversight bodies, state ownership)?
- What examples of other stakeholders incentivizing, enabling or supporting HRDD exist (e.g. investors, law firms, corporate advisory services, stock exchanges, benchmarking, civil society organizations)?
- Other relevant information is also welcome
