No.32/2015 (Democratic People’s Republic of Korea)

Communication addressed to the Government on 27 March 2015

Concerning Ms. Hyang-sil Kwon

The Government has not replied to the communication

The State is a party to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights.

1. The Working Group on Arbitrary Detention was established in resolution 1991/42 of the former Commission on Human Rights, which extended and clarified the Working Group’s mandate in its resolution 1997/50. The Human Rights Council assumed the mandate in its decision 2006/102 and extended it for a three-year period in its resolution 15/18 of 30 September 2010. The mandate was extended for a further three years in resolution 24/7 of 26 September 2013. In accordance with its methods of work (A/HRC/30/69), the Working Group transmitted the above-mentioned communication to the Government.

2. The Working Group regards deprivation of liberty as arbitrary in the following cases:

   (a) When it is clearly impossible to invoke any legal basis justifying the deprivation of liberty (as when a person is kept in detention after the completion of his or her sentence or despite an amnesty law applicable to the detainee) (category I);

   (b) When the deprivation of liberty results from the exercise of the rights or freedoms guaranteed by articles 7, 13, 14, 18, 19, 20 and 21 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and, insofar as States parties are concerned, by articles 12, 18, 19, 21, 22, 25, 26 and 27 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (category II);

   (c) When the total or partial non-observance of the international norms relating to the right to a fair trial, established in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and in the relevant international instruments accepted by the States concerned, is of such gravity as to give the deprivation of liberty an arbitrary character (category III);
(d) When asylum seekers, immigrants or refugees are subjected to prolonged administrative custody without the possibility of administrative or judicial review or remedy (category IV);

(e) When the deprivation of liberty constitutes a violation of international law for reasons of discrimination based on birth; national, ethnic or social origin; language; religion; economic condition; political or other opinion; gender; sexual orientation; or disability or other status, and which aims towards or can result in ignoring the equality of human rights (category V).

Communication from the source

4. According to the source, the Chinese Government pursues a strict policy of forcibly repatriating citizens of the DPRK who enter China illegally. The source further indicates that in the DPRK, persons repatriated from China are treated as political criminals and they are subjected to punishments, including imprisonment, torture, and execution. For fear of being apprehended by the Chinese police and repatriated to the DPRK, in 2004, Ms. Kwon decided to flee to the Republic of Korea to join her brother who just settled there.

5. On 31 March 2004, prior to her planned escape to the Republic of Korea, Ms. Kwon was arrested by the Chinese police at a hotel in Shenyang, China. Seven other nationals from the DPRK were arrested together with Ms. Kwon. The police allegedly did not present any warrant at the time of the arrest. Ms. Kwon was then repatriated to the DPRK.

6. In early May 2004, Ms. Kwon was transferred from Sinuiju to Hoiryung City Security Council where she was under investigation until August 2004. During the period of Ms. Kwon’s detention in the Hoiryung City Security Council, her family was allowed to deliver food to her through the security agent there. However, she was never allowed to receive any visit by her family.

7. On 31 August 2004, Ms. Kwon’s family was informed by a security agent from the Hoiryung City Security Council that she was transferred to the North Hamkyung Provincial Security Agency in Chongjin. Since then, Ms. Kwon’s family has never received any information on her whereabouts from the relevant authorities in the DPRK.

8. Based on the information collected by the source, it is believed that in 2005, Ms. Kwon was transferred to Yoduk Political Prison Camp.

9. The source reports that in the DPRK, there is no official notification provided to the family when a person is sent to a political prison camp. Families of detained individuals often bribe personnel of the NSA to disclose information on the whereabouts of persons detained in political prison camps. The source further reports that in the DPRK, there are no legal procedures to challenge the legality or arbitrariness of any detention of political prisoners. It is reported that anyone who attempts to establish the whereabouts of the detained persons or challenge the legality of the detention by unofficial channels will be convicted and punished on the basis of the principle of guilt-by-association.

10. Ms. Kwon has been detained since 2004 without trial. Her family has never been informed of the reasons for her continued incommunicado detention.
11. The source submits that the detention of Ms. Hyang-sil Kwon is arbitrary and falls under category I, II and III of the Working Group’s defined categories of arbitrary detention.

12. The source is of the view that the continued detention of Ms. Kwon could fall under category I given that there is no legal basis to justify her deprivation of liberty. The source further argues that Ms. Kwon has been detained merely because she left the country and tried to flee to the Republic of Korea, which is in violation of her right to freedom of movement, as guaranteed by article 13 of the Universal Declaration of Human rights (UDHR), and article 12 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR).

13. The source further argues that Ms. Kwon has not been guaranteed the international norms of due process and guarantees to a fair trial, in violation of articles 9 and 10 of the UDHR, and articles 9 and 14 of the ICCPR. As mentioned above, Ms. Kwon has been detained without trial.

Response from the Government

14. The Government has not responded to the allegations transmitted by the Group on 27 March 2015.

Discussion

15. Despite the absence of any information from the Government, the Working Group considers it is in the position to render its Opinion on the detentions of Ms. Kwon in conformity with paragraph 16 of its Methods of Work.

16. The Government choose not to challenge the prima facie reliable information of the violations of Ms. Kwon’s rights provided by the source.

17. According to the information received by the Working Group, Ms. Kwon had fled to China in 1998 and resided there until 2004. For the fear of being deported and repatriated back to the DPRK, in 2004, Ms. Kwon decided to flee from China to the Republic of Korea. However, on 31 March 2004, she was arrested by the Chinese police and repatriated to the DPRK.

18. In May 2004, Ms. Kwon was transferred to Hoiryung City Security Council and then, in August, was transferred to the North Hamkyung Provincial Security Agency in Chongjin. Since then, Ms. Kwon’s family has never received any information on her whereabouts from the relevant authorities in the DPRK.

19. Ms. Kwon has been detained as a political prisoner by the DPRK authorities incommunicado since 2004 without any legal basis justifying her deprivation of liberty. Thus, the deprivation of liberty of Ms. Kwon falls within category I of the categories applicable to the consideration of cases submitted to the Working Group.

20. Furthermore, Ms. Kwon is deprived of liberty without trial, with no access to a lawyer, and without possibility to challenge the lawfulness of the detention in violation of articles 9 and 10 of the UDHR, and articles 9 and 14 of the ICCPR.

21. The Working Group considers that the non-observance of the international norms relating to the right to a fair trial in this case is of such gravity as to give the deprivation of liberty of Ms. Kwon an arbitrary character. Thus, the deprivation of liberty of Ms. Kwon falls within category III of the categories applicable to the consideration of cases submitted to the Working Group.

Disposition

22. In the light of the foregoing, the Working Group on Arbitrary Detention renders the following opinion:

The deprivation of liberty of Ms. Kwon has been arbitrary, being in contravention of articles 9 and 10 of the UDHR, and articles 9 and 14 of the ICCPR; it falls within categories I and III of the categories applicable to the consideration of the cases submitted to the Working Group.

23. Consequent upon the opinion rendered, the Working Group requests the Government to take the necessary steps to remedy the situation of Ms. Kwon and bring it into conformity with the standards and principles set forth in the UDHR.

24. The Working Group believes that, taking into account all the circumstances of the case, the adequate remedy would be to release of Ms. Kwon and accord her an enforceable right to compensation in accordance with article 9.5, of the ICCPR.
