on Operationalizing the Right to Development in Implementing the Sustainable Development Goals

FIFTH ROUND: 24 JUNE - 21 JULY 2020 / SIXTH ROUND: 21 OCTOBER - 17 NOVEMBER 2020

INSTRUCTORS:

Dr. Mihir Kanade, Head of the Department of International Law and Director of the Human Rights Centre, University for Peace, Costa Rica, and
Dr. Obijiofor Aginam, Visiting Senior Research Fellow and Former Deputy Director, United Nations University International Institute for Global Health, Adjunct Research Professor of Law and Legal Studies, Carleton University, Ottawa

The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, the University for Peace, and the United Nations University’s International Institute for Global Health jointly offer a four-week interactive and instructor-led e-learning module to train stakeholders on the normative, theoretical and practical importance of and mechanisms for operationalizing the Right to Development in the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals.

No fee: The training is offered free of charge to participants.
Expert Design: The module is designed by global experts from several countries.
Ideal Class Size: The course is limited to a maximum of 100 participants worldwide, allowing for instructor-participant and peer-to-peer learning and sharing of experiences
Dynamic pedagogy: Readings, multimedia, webinars, discussion forums, quizzes, and other cutting-edge tools.
Balanced time management: Designed for working professionals; requires 3 to 5 hours per week as per convenience; course-weeks begin on Wednesdays to allow weekends to fall in the middle.
Certification: Participants who successfully complete the module are awarded a certificate of completion.

Who should apply: Staff of governmental, intergovernmental, and non-governmental organizations, human rights practitioners and defenders, development practitioners, academics, students, and others engaged in realizing the SDGs.
