Post-crisis adjustment and fiscal consolidation processes 2010 onwards)

Q.1. Has your country adopted, or does it expect to adopt contractionary fiscal policy in the aftermath of the global economic crisis?
A. Myanmar was not directly hit by global recession and world financial crisis, given its low level of trade and financial linkages with industrial countries. Along with continuing economic reforms to promote economic growth activities and to uplift the living standards of population, fiscal strengthening is being carried out to pursue infrastructure investment while more have been spent on social outlays. In this regard, Myanmar has not adopted contractionary fiscal policy in the aftermath of the global economic crisis.

Q.2. What percentage if any, of expenditure reductions are being or will be directed at social expenditure, including education, health, social security, housing water and sanitation?
A. Any reductions are not made on social expenditures. Since Myanmar authorities are making efforts for equitable development of the country and narrowing the development gap to reduce poverty, the social expenditures including education, health, social security, housing water and sanitation has been increasingly spent to improve the public health, education and social infrastructure. Spending on social services was amounted to kyats 442.7 billion in FY 2010/11 and increased by 21.28 percent from that of FY 2009/2010. Currently, social expenditure spending is about 17.2 percent of total expenditure.

Q.3. Please describe all actual or proposed reductions in expenditure on special social protection programs including any reduction of benefits or number of beneficiaries.
A. There are no reductions in expenditure on special social protection programs.

Q.4. Please describe all actual or proposed reductions in expenditure on the wage bill, including any cut or freeze in wages of public health and education sectors workers?
A. There is no reduction in expenditure on the wage bill. Furthermore, Public sector wages were raised five to twelve fold in 2006/2007 and an incremental adjustment was made in January 2010 by supplementing a flat 20,000 kyats to all different pay scales.

Q.5. Have current economic recovery policies taken into account development in unemployment, food prices and social inequalities?
A. Myanmar authorities have implemented a series of short term five year plans to achieve high growth rate and the progress in the socio-economic condition of the country. Currently the Fourth Short Term Five Year Plan has been implementing with sixteen objectives which include expanding education and health sectors for human resource development and the alleviation of poverty. Participation of private sector investment in infrastructure and economic development projects have been encouraged to create more job opportunities for the local populace. Since Myanmar is a food sufficient country and emphasis has been placed on ensuring self sufficiency and surplus on export, there was no impact of rising international food prices.

Q.6. Does your country expect to restore public expenditure after a certain time period, and, if so, when?
A. Fiscal policy is broadly unchanged with consolidated public sector deficit projected to remain at around 3 ½ percent of GDP in recent years. The authorities acknowledged large infrastructure needs and plans to increase capital spending while a realistic consolidation plan it necessary for fiscal sustainability and to keep inflation in check. There is also substantial room within the current budget envelope to reallocate spending to education and health, and infrastructure projects, especially in agriculture and power generation.
