1. Please explain how your government defines homelessness?

The Ministry of Housing doesn't have a specific definition of "homelessness", but there are categories which can be classified under this concept as described below:

- The residents of unconventional buildings: The Central Agency for Public Mobilization and Statistics (CAPMAS) refers to the unconventional buildings as (Hut - Tent - cemetery - cart ... etc).
- The neediest and urgent cases: The Ministry of Housing is allocating housing units to the neediest and urgent cases through the study and research Committee constituted by the Ministerial Decree No. 452 of 2014 under the chairmanship of the Minister of Housing to receive the requests of low income, neediest and urgent cases citizens (low-income people - residents of unconventional buildings - widows and divorced-homeless ......).

2. How is Homelessness measured in your country? What criteria and indicators are used and how is data collected and systematically updated for this purpose?

The residents of unconventional buildings: The main sources for calculating the population of unconventional buildings are the data released every ten years by the Central Agency for Public Mobilization and Statistics (2006 is the latest version). In addition to CAPMAS periodic annual reports as well as periodic reports issued by the National Urban Observatory (NUO) affiliated to the General Organization For Physical Planning (GOPP).

These data are collected and updated through a comprehensive survey carried out by CAPMAS, that data are used when developing the annual plan for housing in Egypt aimed at providing residential units to cover unmet needs of residential units, including the units of unconventional buildings inhabitants and one-room inhabitants.

The neediest and urgent cases: The main source for collecting data of the neediest and urgent cases is the social research carried out by sociologists at the Ministry of Solidarity to know if they deserve to get housing units, whether through field visits and each case document, all of these data are reviewed through the study and research Committee constituted by the Ministerial Decree No. 452 of 2014.

The selection Criteria and indicators used for selecting the beneficiaries is done through the availability of the following conditions:
• Low-income citizens (less than 3000 L.E./M for families and 2250 L.E./M for Single).
• The citizen or the family (husband / wife / minor children) mustn’t own a housing unit or have an old rent system unit.

It is possible to identify a set of main causes for the existence of the neediest and urgent cases through their units' allocation requests as follows:

6. Has Homelessness been recognized as a human right violation by courts or by national human rights institution in your country?

First: Egypt’s Constitution 2014:

Egypt believes that adequate housing is one of the essential needs of modern man, it's also a fundamental component of people rights approved by international conventions, one of the basic rights of protection and care provided by the State to its citizens as it comes after the state commitment to provide food and clothing, and from here emerged the importance of housing as one of the main pillars for the security of any society.

The 2014 Constitution reflects the keen interest of the Egyptian Government to provide adequate housing as the article 78 of the 2014 Constitution stipulated, “The state guarantees the right to adequate, safe and healthy housing to all citizens, ensuring human dignity and social justice. The state is also obligated to establish a national housing plan...”

Egypt is also a signatory to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights states (the right to adequate housing) and Article (25) Stipulated, “Everyone has the right to a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of himself and of his family, including food, clothing, housing and medical care and necessary social services, and the right to security in the event of unemployment, sickness, disability, widowhood, old age or other lack of livelihood in circumstances beyond his control”.

Second: Egypt housing strategy:

As a part of the state interest to develop a vision for housing which includes stable strategies to define the responsibilities of the housing sector various actors, the Ministry of Housing is currently preparing the final draft of Egypt housing strategy in collaboration with the United Nations Human Settlements Programme (UN-Habitat), the most important objectives of this strategy:

- Citizens empowerment to recognize their right to housing and live a decent life in a stable and secure environment as well as good services, without discrimination on the basis of different social groups and income segments, especially to ensure adequate housing for groups that cannot provide accommodation for themselves.
- Equality and social justice in housing policies.
- Targeting the poor and underprivileged groups to enable them to obtain adequate housing and enjoy prosperous living conditions.
- Achieving sustainability through enabling housing sector to reach the best use of scarce resources for current and future generations.

Among the governing principles of the strategy:

- All citizens enjoy the right to adequate housing, as stipulated in the Egyptian Constitution of 2014 (Article 78) and in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (Article 25).
- Social Justice: where should not be any discrimination between the community sectors in housing policies and programs and also no sector should be marginalized.
- The state's commitment to help those who are unable to find housing units, including marginalized and disadvantaged groups because of the failures of the market economy.
- Support of housing policies for sustainable national economic development plans, either directly or indirectly. This means the housing contribution in achieving effective economic development for current and future generations.
- Housing policies and programmes based on the accurate information about the sector through its reliance on adequate studies of the housing markets and its dynamics.

7. What legal or administrative procedures are available to challenge actions or inaction by governments or private actors on the grounds that they lead to or fail to address homelessness?

- The state has implemented renting to the neediest citizens project (with a total 43,000 unit) which considered one of the National Housing project components.
