Measures to promote and protect the rights of minorities in India

1. India is a multi-religious, multi-cultural, multi-lingual and multi-racial society, interwoven into an innate unity by the common thread of national integration and communal harmony.

2. The social pluralism of India is fortified by the unique Constitutional concept of secularism, and constitutionally mandated protection and promotion of rights all minority communities. The Indian Constitution enshrines secularism in its Preamble. It guarantees fundamental rights to all minorities. Genuinely independent institutions, including Judiciary, Human Rights Commission, and Minorities Commission, protect and promote these rights.

Constitutional Provisions:

3. The Preamble to the Constitution declares the State to be ‘Secular’ and all citizens of India are to be secured ‘liberty of thought, expression, belief, faith and worship and ‘equality of status and of opportunity.’

4. Indian Constitution is unique as it provides for constitutionally mandated positive discrimination for minorities. Part III of the Constitution, which deals with the Fundamental Rights provides for:

   Article 14: people’s right to ‘equality’ before the law and ‘equal protection of the laws’.

   Article 15(1) & 15(2): prohibition of discrimination against citizens on grounds of religion, race, caste, sex or place of birth.

   Article 16(1) & 16(2): citizens’ right to ‘equality of opportunity’ in matters relating to employment or appointment to any office under the State – and prohibition in this regard of discrimination on grounds of religion, race, caste, sex or place of birth.

   Article 25(1): people’s freedom of conscience and right to freely profess, practice and propagate religion – subject to public order, morality and other Fundamental Rights.

   Article 26: right of ‘every religious denomination or any section thereof – subject to public order, morality and health – to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes, ‘manage its own affairs in matters of religion’, and own and acquire movable immovable property and administer it ‘in accordance with law.

   Annexure ‘A’
Article 27: prohibition against compelling any person to pay taxes for promotion of any particular religion.

Article 28: people's 'freedom as to attendance at religious instruction or religious worship' in educational institutions' wholly maintained, recognized, or aided by the State.

Article 29 (2): restriction on denial of admission to any citizen, to any educational institution maintained or aided by the State, 'on grounds only of religion, race, caste, language or any of them'.

Article 30(1): right of all Religious and Linguistic Minorities to establish and administer educational institutions of their choice.

Article 30(2): freedom of Minority-managed educational institutions from discrimination in the matter of receiving aid from the State.

National Commission for Minorities- a Statutory body

5. In addition to these safeguards provided in the Constitution and the laws in force, a National Commission for Minorities has been established as a statutory body under the National Commission for Minorities Act, 1992. As per Section 9(1) of the NCM Act, 1992, the Commission is required to perform functions that, inter-alia, include, monitoring of the working of the safeguards for minorities provided in the Constitution and in laws enacted by Parliament and the State Legislatures; making recommendations for the effective implementation of safeguards for the protection of the interests of minorities by the Central Government or the State Governments; looking into specific complaints regarding deprivation of rights and safeguards of minorities and taking up such matters with the appropriate authorities, etc.
