OPEN CALL – SHORT FILMS & DOCUMENTARIES

This year's Annual Forum on Business and Human Rights will include in the agenda two sessions for the screening of short films/documentaries related to Business and Human Rights. These may feature relevant issues linked to the BHR agenda, and be linked to one or more of the three pillars of the Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights. To spur new thinking, the short films/documentaries may also highlight relevant lessons from related fields, such as anti-corruption, business ethics, development, and behavioural economics, among others.

All short films/documentaries may be presented in the original language with English/French/Spanish subtitles. Short films/documentaries without at least English subtitles will not be considered. Please bear in mind that the short films/movies should not focus on “naming and shaming” individual countries, businesses, or organisations and should present data in a balanced and constructive way.

Each selected slot will have a maximum duration of 30 minutes, including time to present the short film/documentary. Presenters will have an opportunity to discuss the topics of the short films/documentaries with Forum participants within the 30 minutes allocated, if time allows and dependant to the duration of the short film/documentary.

Due to space constraints for the 2023 event, only a limited number of short films/documentaries may be included in the programme.

Proposals must include:

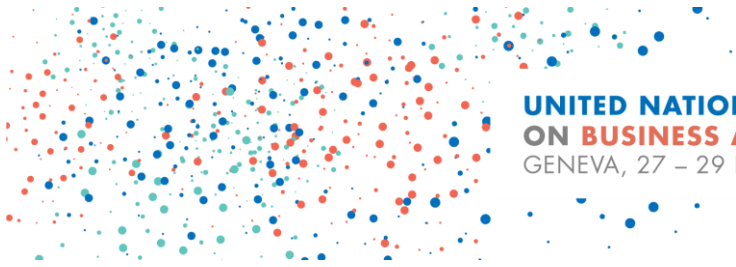

- Title of the short film/documentary
- Small synopsis (max. 250 words)
- Link to visualize the short film/documentary.
- Duration of the short film/documentary (Max 30 min)
- Organisation (s)
- Name of the contact point
- Contact information.

Tentative time: Monday 27 and Tuesday 28 November, 13:20 – 14:40, Room XXVI at the Palais des Nations. This room has a total capacity of 322 participants. Session will be held in an in-person format only. Interpretation not provided.
